SOME TEL AVIV TIPS

- Weather permitting – and that’s most of the year – spend a few hours at one of Tel Aviv’s many beaches!
- Rent a city bike for a few hours or a day. Lose yourself in the city and explore at your own pace.
- Visit the biblical port city of Jaffa, an integral part of modern Tel Aviv – the interactive Visitors Center, modernized Jaffa Port, the famous flea market.
- Wander through Tel Aviv’s outdoor Carmel Market for a cornucopia of sights, aromas and tastes, inexpensive clothing and more, and the ambience of the sing-song vendors.
- On Tuesday or Friday, walk from the market to the Nahalat Binyamin Pedestrian Mall, site of the Nahalat Binyamin Arts & Crafts Fair.
- Explore gentrified Neve Tzedek, a 19th-century neighborhood founded even prior to Tel Aviv. Enjoy the architecture and the “vibe.”
- Go on a Bauhaus tour of Tel Aviv and discover why Tel Aviv’s “White City” is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.
- Indulge in hummus, falafel, shwarma at any of the dozens of Middle Eastern-style street-side eateries dotting the city, but also consider splurging on a gourmet meal in Tel Aviv, fast becoming an international gourmet mecca.
- Discover Tel Aviv’s nightlife scene: most of the offerings are publicized in Hebrew, so ask for assistance from the hotel front desk.

Tel Aviv Museum of Art

Independence Hall of Israel

Iconic Independence Hall, is a leading national history museum offering guided tours and special events reenacting Israel's revolutionary Declaration of Independence in 1948, for modern day visitors. The historic building was originally owned by Tel Aviv's first mayor, Meir Dizengoff, and was donated by him to become the Tel-Aviv Museum of Art. On Friday, May 14, 1948, exactly at 4 p.m. - eight hours before the termination of the British Mandate - the ceremony declaring Israel's Independence began. Members of the People's Council and invited leaders, gathered in the Museum's main hall to listen with emotion as David Ben-Gurion read out Israel's Declaration of Independence.

Today, visitors can see pieces of original artwork on the walls, watch a short film on the history leading up to May 14, 1948, and hear the authentic recording of Ben-Gurion as he establishes the State of Israel.

Ilana Goor Museum

For the first time in Israel, you have the opportunity to admire works of art from the point of view of the artist/collector, rather than as exhibits in a sterile academic environment.

The Ilana Goor Museum is located in an 18th-century building surrounded by the breathtaking landscape of the shoreline of Tel Aviv and the Old Jaffa. Fascinating historical events are ensconced within the museum's walls dating back to 280 years ago, when the building served as the first Jewish inn for pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem. The museum was restored based on its original building and boasts over 500 Israeli, international and Ethnic Art alongside Goor's creations. The Museum collections are blessed with artists such as Diego Giacometti, Henry Moore, Joseph Albers, Uri Lifshitz, Yigal Tumarkin, Pesi Grsch, Yaakov Dorchin and others.

Despite the Museum's eclectic nature, each room features creations from different places and times. Each work of art has a different background and a story all its own. The Museum's uniqueness lies in the unexpected contexts generated by each artist, both on the human and on the visual level. A visit to the Ilana Goor Museum in Tel Aviv, Israel is an adventure for the senses.

The museum is run by a nonprofit organization with the goal of promoting art and young artists.

Beit Bialik – A museum, an archive and a cultural centre for the heritage of Israel's national poet Chaim Nachman Bialik.

Once home to the poet and his family. Beit Bialik was renovated by the Tel Aviv-Yafo Municipality in 2009 during celebrations honouring the city's 100th anniversary.

The building is part of the Bialik Complex, a site devoted to Hebrew and Israeli culture, located in an area of the city designated by UNESCO as a World Heritage Site. Originally designed by the architect Yosef Minor, today Beit Bialik serves as a museum, archive and center of Hebrew culture.

The façade of the building was renovated and restored in the spirit of the building during Bialik's lifetime. The original colors and ornamentation on the walls were uncovered and restored; authentic furniture and artefacts were refurbished; the space allotted for the archive containing Bialik's writings was doubled in size; the room featuring exhibits was combined with a space for children's activities, and a new, permanent display was built to highlight a portrait of the poet including the abundance of his creativity and his extensive contribution to the culture and society of the country. The site offers museum-related activities to individuals and groups of children and adults.

Nahum Gutman Museum of Art

Situated among the narrow and poetic alleys of Neve Tzedek, the Nahum Gutman Museum of Art presents an important artistic collection of one of the most influential and interesting figures of Israel in the 20th century.

Nahum Gutman's personal story and art is connected to the historical and cultural story of the Jewish people in the early days of Israel.

In addition to its permanent rich collection of paintings, drawings, sculptures and books, the museum presents contemporary exhibitions of prominent artists whose work is relevant to the main issues in Gutman's work: Tel Aviv and Jaffa and their unique history, Israeli paintings and illustrations and intergenerational dialogue.

The museum offers guided group tours of its exhibitions and the picturesque Neve Tzedek neighborhood.

Rokach House Historical Site - Neve Zedek 1887

Rokach House was built by Shimon Rokach, a man with a vision, the entrepreneur and the developer of the new Jewish neighborhood, Neve Zedek. The house tells the story of a dream come true, a dream of the Jews of Jaffa to build a new and independent neighborhood outside Jaffa, in the dunes along the coast. Following Neve Zedek, more houses and neighborhoods were built, conquering the dunes to form the city of Tel Aviv. The house with the dome, an architectural gem, the only house restored in the spirit of old Neve Zedek, provides visitors an atmosphere of authentic artifacts and furniture - a journey in time. The house hosts special events, including two plays: "The Saga of Neve Zedek," which portrays the life and times of Neve Zedek at its birth in 1887, and "Cabaret Neve Zedek," a musical on Tel Aviv in the 1920s-30s. The house features a permanent exhibition (paintings and sculptures) of the artist Lea Majaro Mintz, the granddaughter of Shimon Rokach, and temporary exhibitions by new and young artists.

KISIM-innovating bags

Every handbag is considered a "piece of art", expressing different moods, reflecting your individual style. Kisim handbags, totes, purses and shoulder bags are individually designed and carefully handcrafted.

The extraordinary attention to detail is the kernel of the Kisim allure. People get as excited about a casual tote, or the fabric back-pack, as they do about the most dramatic leather handbag. Each creation transcends mere glamour and becomes a statement in quality and artistry.

Each creation is a result of the artistic collaboration between Yael Rosen Ben Shachar founder and owner, and Orly Cohen Alloro. Kisim bags are being sold in two KISIM shops in Tel-Aviv, and abroad; in boutiques and museum shops in the USA, France, Spain, Switzerland and Singapore.
